

And in the beginning

In September when it all began, the world consisted of four halls, two-by-four lockers with REAL workable combinations, and a multitude of new faces. For the first time in years, seniors were just as lost as freshmen.

While the general public was shaking its head; wondering if the pupils of the newly formed North Putnam Jr.-Sr. High School would "gel" into one body, the students were busy sharing ideas about which teachers they should be wary of and how to make better, high-flying paper airplanes. By the end of the first week the newness of everything began to diminish and an air of quality and character was given to N.P. by its united students.

The scenes on the following pages depict typical scenes of those students who have had the honor of christening a new school building, the result of the efforts of the North Putnam community. This community, its students, its teachers, and its parents made the 1969-1970 school year a time to remember; therefore, this annual is dedicated to those hard-working, straight-thinking individuals.

The traditional giving of gifts at Christmas was practiced by (l. to r.) V. McCaughey, M. Soloman, D. Dearing, D. Goode.
