

Administration heads school

The administration of NPHS was very active this year. Not only were the men active in the routine affairs of the school, but they were active in the problems which arise the first year in any new school.

Establishing a school system with standards acceptable to both the state and public was the main concern of the men. Other problems were dealing with various contractors and helping to set school policies. The School Board and Superintendent were also busy going on tours of the school to visiting administration.

Many schoolroom problems were solved at the meetings of the Classroom Teachers Association (CTA).

The school administration board for 1969-70 included (from r. to l.) J. Mandleco, J. Burdette, C.

Fraze, T. Goode, J. Crosby, H. Alcorn, W. Clodfelter, J. Ratcliff.
