

A sophomore helped stack cases of pop in the coke room.

SOPHOMORES SWING

Sophisticated North Putnam group?

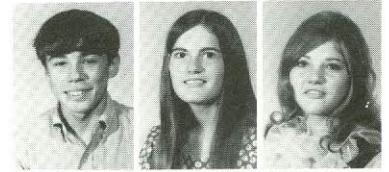

A wild, witty, wide collection of humanity was represented by the sophomore class. They were a more sophisticated group than they had been the year before, but, at the same time, they maintained the doctrine of "If I've only one life to live, let me live it as a sophomore". This doctrine was established, according to legend, as an ancient Greek Sophomore was being led to his doom for screaming, "Who is Silas Marner?", thus giving George Eliot a title for her book.

If you look at the more practical aspects of being a member of this honorable class, you would see intellectual sophs doing a Scottish jig at the local Speech contest or drinking Carnation diet drink at lunch. Proving that they were THE united class, they traveled in herds.

J. Adamson
N. Ader
R. Alcorn

T. Anderson
D. App
J. Asher

J. Baker
B. Baldwin
R. Barker

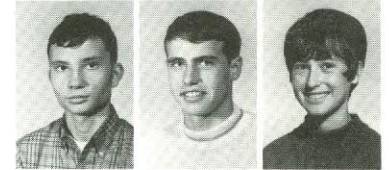

S. Bell
M. Boruff
K. Bowers

P. Brackney
M. Bridges
S. Brookshire

J. Brothers
F. Bunn
P. Chadwick

A. Chastain
G. Cloncs
J. Crawford

D. Crawley
S. Crosby
W. Crosby

D. Danberry
D. Deeringer
R. Disney

D. Dozier
D. Edwards
K. Evans

