

The eighth grade class officers were (l. to r.) C. Miles, K. McBride, C. Allen, C. Boller, L. Summers, T. Mattingly, J. Lambermont.

EIGHTH GRADE

Next year— High School

The transition that was made from the seventh grade to the eighth grade was remarkable. The eighth grader was an experienced individual. He provided imaginative explanations for being tardy to classes, racing through the halls, and blowing bubbles in class.

Although they had almost out-grown their requirements for junior high, they were not quite ready to measure up to the position of freshmen.

The eighth graders had to make a very important decision concerning their curriculum for their first year in high school. Some were just concerned with getting through high school with as much ease as possible while others based their decisions upon their future career plans. Some of the eighth graders' future plans consists of doctors, teachers, farmers, and just everyday working people.

Their junior high years were spent in a smaller school and ended in a large and newly consolidated school. Being eighth graders, they will spend their four high school years in NP's first existing years.

K. Adams
R. Alexander
J. Allee

C. Allen
D. App
T. Asher

J. Baker
W. Barger
M. Beamon

S. Bock
S. Boller
A. Boruff

S. Brewster
R. Brothers
N. Burdine

B. Burke
R. Burton
M. Carrington

D. Clodfelter
J. Clodfelter
J. Clodfelter

B. Cloncs
D. Crodian
F. Davasher

C. Davis
K. Evens
K. Farrow

J. Fordice
M. French
D. Fruits

