

Mrs. L. Myers
Mrs. D. Myers

Mrs. Stalker
Mr. Thomas

What's English?

The land of books with magic words to take us anywhere in the world--this was English. We strolled through the Catskills with Rip Van Winkle, held back tears at the death of Romeo and Juliet, and counted the wounds that Julius Caesar had.

Although many students disliked English, they sometimes failed to realize how frequently they used this implement. Reading lunch menus, asking for a library pass, writing a note to a boyfriend--this was English.

English classes often took voyages to find sunken treasure--unknown vocabulary words, spelling skills, and correct grammar. The older students digested facts to be assimilated into term papers or themes while the younger school population gave examples of onomatopoeia. THIS was English.

Unfortunately students didn't always line up as willingly for English class as they did at lunch.

Limericks

Varóoom

HAIKU

What Do You Know
About Language?

TA-TA
DING-DONG
BOW-WOW
AND POOH-POOH

Tom Sawyer

Creating an Impression

America Reads

Nothing great was ever achieved

The poor parking conditions for cars proved to be a topic much discussed by faculty and kids.