

Our able bookkeeper, cashier, and girl Friday was Mrs. Priest. Mrs. Goff served as receptionist, switchboard operator, and secretary. These ladies deserved many thanks for their capability

The staff worked behind the scenes.

The bus drivers, the janitors, the cooks, the school nurse, the speech therapist, and the secretaries were the special people you saw everywhere that kept things moving smoothly at North Putnam.

Bus drivers often had difficulties with their buses, but they always managed to deliver their student riders to school. Not only did the bus drivers shuttle students back and forth from home to school, but they also acted as chauffeurs to ball games, G.A.A. events, and all sorts of field trips.

Because of the volume of lunches prepared at school and the limited time element involved, it was not always possible to fix everything just the way Mother did. The cooks at North Putnam prepared an average of 500-600 meals daily. This was a large amount of food to get ready and to clean up after in just six hours. They did a good job!

Mrs. Bee, the school nurse, issued band-aids, calmed ill students, and kept the Candy Strippers busy throughout the year. The TB test, the Smoking Sam program, and the brush-in were a few programs headed by Mrs. Bee.

Our secretaries, Mrs. Goff and Mrs. Priest, filled out many admittance slips, report cards, and attendance reports. Only these women really understood the school switchboard!

After the corridors no longer rang with laughter and chatter, the janitors began some of the clean-up and repair so North Putnam could begin its day all over again tomorrow.
