

North Putnam's faculty members were faced with some rather unusual circumstances throughout the year, ranging from hidden gradebooks, to falling desks, to the great Carrot Scandal! Even with all of these catastrophies, the "terific teachers" managed to get something constructive done, although the kids didn't always realize that they were learning.

It seems the Math Department has problems with addition, even when using calculators! The magical mathematicians were Mr. William Hawley, Mr. Francis McClure, Mrs. Anne McKeehan, Mrs. Shirley Steward, and Mr. Jim Myers.

INSTRUCTORS ENCOURAGE INTELLECT, INDEPENDENCE

By teaching shorthand, typing, and accounting, the Business Department prepared students for future jobs as well as providing talents useful to a college student. Instructors are Mrs. Kay Greeson, Miss Mary Smith, Mr. David Felty and Mrs. Betty Job.

As North Putnam's librarian, Mrs. Millicent Hammerling keeps students informed of library facilities and their proper usage.

Miss Nina Terrell expresses her horror at realizing that Mrs. Jackie McGaughey has just sewn her skirt together—at the bottom!
