

Seniors Remember

Class officers Kelly Sanders, Monta O'Hair, Penny Allen and Cindy Clodfelter shouldered many responsibilities to prepare for Commencement with the aid of class sponsor Linda Patrick (right).

With the news that the man from the cap and gown company was coming to measure Seniors for their Commencement robes, the members of the Class of '76 finally realized that the end of their North Putnam years was at hand.

The memories of illegal squirt guns, spirit stick contests, hush-hush Senior parties and Homecoming began to be treasured.

Many Seniors started to think more seriously of future plans. While some anticipated marriage, others pondered what college to attend.

Soon the frustration of tests and the boredom of daily routine would be behind them.
