One of the newest sports at school is Soccer. It is also the first co-ed sport. Soccer originated three years ago with some dedicated planing and persistence for existence by Coach Ron Price. In the past the team has competed against schools from very distant areas in the state. This year a new conference was chosen simply to compete a bit closer to home. It takes dedication and endurance to be a good soccer player. Team members have often played three games within one week's time. Why would anyone want to play such a tiresome sport? Andrew Burns plays soccer to keep in shape. "The game is very physical, it takes more energy. I've played for three years and hope to continue competing." "It takes endurance and lots of running ability," says senior member Bill Martin. "You need coordination skills because of the awkward movements that are needed. You really use your feet!" Another senior Travis Keyt, tried it because he likes it. "I understand the game better than any other I've participated in." He also urged others to try out but be sure to plan on being dedicated and determined to give your best.
