

An Experiment in Marriage

LEFT: Doug seals the ceremony with a kiss.
LOWER LEFT: The happy couple is all smiles after the ceremony.

On November 17, 1989 at 1:15 in the North Putnam library, Kristie Henson and Doug Parent were joined in marriage. The ceremony was officiated by Reverend Mark Miller of Greencastle. Kristie was given away by Mr. John Moser.

The Psychology and Sociology classes took tests on their views on marriage and family. The two that were most compatible were chosen for the wedding. When asked about the experience bride Kristie Henson commented, "It was a learning experience that was a lot of fun. Those don't come around too often." Groom Doug Parent felt the same way, "It was a lot of fun and very informative. The counseling that we had with Reverend Jerry Harris of Roachdale was very interesting." Psychology/Sociology teacher Betty Job told a little about the experiment, "We studied the students' personal traits and then by a test found a couple that was most compatible. It is proven that the more compatible a couple is, the more it is likely the marriage will last."

