

Mock Wedding

October 24, 1990 at 9:00 A.M. in the library was the place and time for the traditional mock wedding. The groom was Jason Schubert, the bride was Bridget Birtchman, the best man was David Chambers, and the bridesmaids were Staci Hunter, Tamie Sharp, and Michelle Long. Mr. Bays gave the bride away.

The very first wedding took place in 1980. Since then, it has taken place every year as a part of Mrs. Job's Sociology class. The purpose of the mock wedding is to show students how to get ready for the real life so that they won't make any mistakes when they get married. Mrs. Job selects the bride and groom after reviewing a four-page test completed by the students. The students are matched based upon similar appearance, interests, and compatibility.

Jason and Bridget make their way through the crowd after saying their vows.

All participants bow their heads in prayer.

"You may kiss the bride."

FHA Initiation Gets Dirty

Two unidentified students receive a mixture of eggs, mustard, ketchup, and syrup from FHA members.

Amy Bastin, Tammy Witt, and Heather Miller endure extreme discomfort.
