Glory Days

Glory Days.

They are the times in your youth that you want to remember forever. Glory Days are pieces of the past that you hold dear to your heart. They are special times with friends, family, and classmates.

This school year, 1990-1991, Glory Days presented a whole new meaning. The U.S. became involved in the Gulf War, Operation Desert Storm, and returned successful. Unlike the Vietnam War, citizens supported the troops, and there was a new sense of pride that spread nationwide. Yellow ribbons decorated lightpoles in Roachdale, and American flags were displayed from homes, and one was even painted on the back of Mr. Tom Roach's blind in his classroom for passing motorists to see.

Many events took place which students may look back on when they reminisce about their Glory Days — a state Winter Guard championship, a regional football championship, a third place for the band in the state finals, homecoming, parties, dances, prom, and graduation.

Bruce Springsteen once recorded a song about his Glory Days;

“Yeah, just sitting back, trying to recapture
a little of the glory of,
but time slips away and leaves you with nothing, mister
but boring stories of Glory Days
well they'll pass you by Glory Days
in the blink of a young girl's eye

People often remark that the height of their Glory Days was during high school. As you proceed through life, perhaps this yearbook will help to remind you of some of those times.
