

Language Arts

Is this a direct or indirect quotation? What is the main point in this poem? Where should the commas go in this sentence? How would you diagram this sentence? Your term papers are due next Tuesday!

Sound familiar? Well, if you've ever participated in a North Putnam English class, then you've probably had these questions, and others like them, ringing in your ears.

Honors, College Bound, Regular Sr., Freshman. 2nd hour, or 6th hour, it doesn't matter, English is a requirement. The purpose of this subject is to teach the students to communicate with ease and accuracy to others by voice or on paper.

Some are even learning to communicate in other languages such as Latin, Spanish, or French.

by Amanda Elliott

Stephanie Jones (French), Lloyd Blubaum, Pat Gottschalk (Spanish), Jerry Goshert (speech/journalism), Barbara Norman, Fran Stevens-Reed, Elaine Chase, Roger Cook, Anne Elmore (Latin)

(left) Seniors Andy Doll, Mike Jackson, Roger Busch, and Jason Schubert celebrate the completion of their term papers with a game of cards and some Pepsi.

(right) Andrew Burns manages to keep a smile on his face, despite the homework due next hour.

