

CONCERT BAND

Roger Busch, David Roberts, Jeremy Staley and Kevin Mendenhall play it one more time.

Concert season consists of many performances like the Christmas concert, February concert, Variety Show, the contest held at Greenwood High School, where they earned a first division placing and a first in sight reading, and the last place the band performed was at Six Flags in St. Louis, Missouri on their band trip.

This year the band lost a big part of the members, with 48 seniors graduating. The seniors did some exciting and unique things, like standing on the chairs when Mr. Wilson announced their names at the Variety Show.

Whether it was marching or concert season, everyone had to put forth many hours of practice and give up a lot of weekends. The North Putnam band has not only done well at contests, but they have also brought pride and spirit to the school.

by Suzanne Griffith

"Can't you find your music, Sarah?"

"Toot those flutes, girls!"

The "trombone tribe" plays another tune.

Above: Jason Poole plays the drums at the annual Variety Show.

Senior Elizabeth Nicholson checks her horn after a performance.

During the Variety Show Jackie and Rachel wait for their cue.