

Editor Says "Thanks!"

When I walked into seventh hour journalism, I was excited about the year. I knew that we could put a yearbook together that we could all be happy with. There are so many people to thank I don't know where to begin.

I want to thank the staffers and typists for their hard work; it's an all-work-little-glory job.

To the editors, hugs and kisses because you guys spend the time doing most of the layouts and deciding what goes into your section. Special thanks to Kristi McKinney and Donnie Spencer, who along with me, came back for the second year, even though we received no credit for the class. Kristi and Donnie, your ideas and opinions helped tremendously.

Our Herff Jones representative was Cathy Wolfe, whom we had the pleasure of working with again this year.

Mr. Durham and the teachers for putting up with our picture problems, and finally, to Mr. Goshert. Jerry is one of the most dedicated teachers I have ever met, and, without him, the yearbook would only be a cheap looking book with pictures and captions.

One last thank-you goes to Larry Deckard, who, for the last 22 years, has provided free film and developing to the yearbook. Sadly, this was his last year to work with us. I wish all future editors-in-chief good luck putting together their classes' yearbooks. It's been great.

A little flexing from the peanut gallery during a trip to the Herff Jones yearbook plant in Kansas City, Kansas.

Bob resists laughing at one of Mary's jokes.

Mr. Goshert finds time to smile as a pressure deadline approaches.
