

Mr. Bill Brothers, Mike Murphy, Bob Young, Jessie Duncan, and Shawn Berry carry on a study session.

Social Studies

by Crystal Mudgett

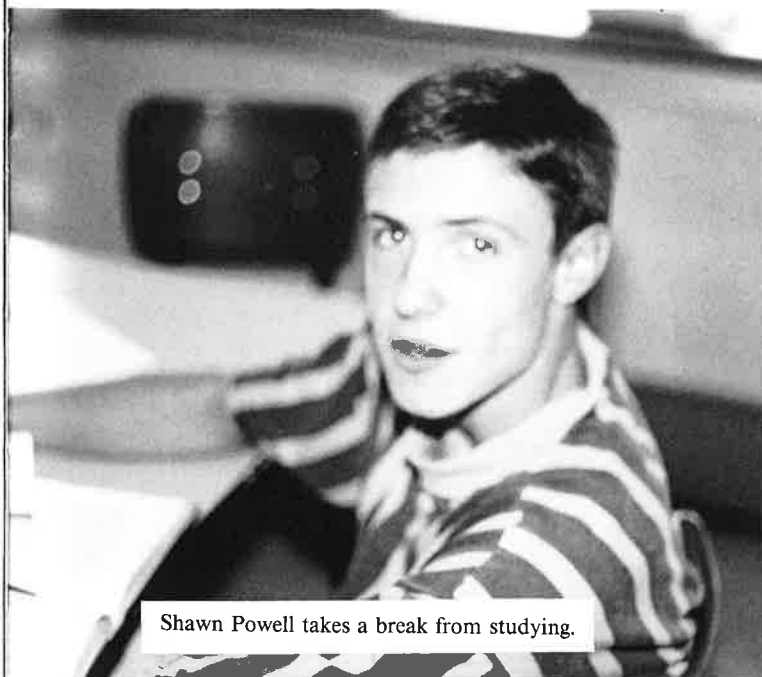

History students learn of the first human civilizations through the study of the destruction of the Berlin Wall, from geography to the Vietnam War to our Indiana government. Under the strict, yet not so strict instruction of Mr. Bays, Mr. Price, Mr. Brothers, Mrs. Norman, and Mr. Roach, these few scholars have led our minds to in-depth thought through a daily regimen of past and present. We've listened to stories of the pilgrims, the development of the United States' democracy system, up to and including the involvement of all the countries involved in the World Wars. Much credit is owed to these incredible historians for influencing our lives.

Lisa Gearld has a positive attitude about this homework assignment.

Malachi Taylor has some quality study time in the cafeteria.

Amber, Kim, and Summer learn "Who Needs Geography" in Mr. Price's seventh grade social studies class.

Kelly Marksberry takes a short nap before Government class.
