'Little' Freshmen

I'm sure that the freshmen who came in 1993 were nervous about being mixed in with the upper classmen. They had come from junior high and into the high school with not too much seniority at all to speak of, that's for sure!

They didn't like being considered "little kids" again as freshman. As they looked back on the first day of school, some thought, "What's the deal, it's not like I'm from Mars!" The reactions they got made them feel like that. They got looks from seniors that made them as if they had a big zit on their nose or something.

As the year had come to an end and the last day was over with, they started to feel somewhat normal again. They had realized the year hadn't been so bad after all. Through all the hard work and all the worrying, they had gained a nice, shiny class ring. ♦ by Emmie Everts
