Dusty Schraub's Most Embarrassing Moment: At a basketball game my freshmen year, I was walking down the bleachers and with about 20 bleachers to go, someone decided to trip me. Well, I fell down all the stairs and onto the floor, and about got ran over by a referee.

Christina Collins's Most Embarrassing Moment: Some friends and I went to the ISU Library to do some research for our papers. We were going into the food court for lunch. A really cute guy held the door for us, but I tripped on the top step in front of everyone and didn't make it to the door.

Ronnie Ringer's Most Embarrassing Moment: My most red-faced moment was when I was coming into school after it was raining and my shoes were really wet. I went sliding down the hallway on my behind. Everyone was watching and laughing at me.

Carrie Swinehart's Most Embarrassing Moment: I worked in the office during block 4. One day, I answered the phone as usual. "North Putnam High School, student speaking..." A man on the other end asked for Mr. Zerkel. I told him that he wasn't in his office and the man asked how I knew. I looked up and told him that I could actually see Mr. Zerkel's office and that it was empty. The man told me to look to the left. I did, and saw Mr. Brothers laughing at me on his phone!

Tammy Greene's Best Memory: During sectional basketball practice, we were running an up the court passing drill. At one of the most intense moments in practice, I was passing the ball to Jenny Rardon and Coach Harper happened to be in the way. The ball hit him in the head and flew across the gym. It was hard to keep a straight face with Kiley Myers And Coach Stockhoff laughing behind me.
