"EEEEEEEEK!" was Stephanie Brown's line as an angered Sir Simon, played by Chris Fruits (middle photo), hits her square in the face with a tasty, whipped cream pie. Here at rehearsal was the first time the pie scene was tried. Apparently, whipped cream was a little messy, so shaving cream was used instead on performance nights. Stephanie was relieved about that, commenting, "I'm so glad it wasn't whipped cream!"

MEMORIZATION IS THE KEY: Erica Hartleroad and Amanda Billings tediously study their lines. Their hard work helped make the performance nights, November 10th and 11th, successful.

TYPICAL SISTERS: Jennifer Harlan and Erica Hartleroad play sisters in the show, here fighting over deodorant spray. Jennifer comments on her part, "In the show I played a bratty teenager. Wait a minute, I am a bratty teenager!"

A PLAY ISN'T COMPLETE . . . without a swoon. Candice Hunt falls into Kory Klein's arms at her character's sight of ghosts in the house. Luckily for her, Kory never dropped her once.

THE ONLY TIME YOU WANT GREY HAIR. . . Chris Fruits and Josh Fenton prepare for the show with white powder for pale faces, dark shadowing under the eyes, and a toothbrush for white hair. Together, ghosts made a frightful scene.
