

"Why he's as big as Li'l Abner!"

Mr. President. Mr. Dan Shepherd made an appearance as the President. Joe Strong and Matt White discuss with him (right).

"Is you or is you not a no-good crook?"
 was Randi Stromski's line, as she questioned General Bullmoose (Josh Blaydes). Joe Ball, Aaron Strader, Toby Baldwin, Paul Pierce, Joe Strong, Alan Stacy, Stephanie Scruggs, and Kara Smith look on for the answer.

"What's good for General Bullmoose is good for the USA" was the secretaries' line. Played by Stephanie Scruggs, Erica Hartleroad, and Mindy Birtchman, they always agreed with the General.

"On your mark!"

Whammy!
 John Huffman explains his plan to Josh Blaydes, Tricia Burger, Treg Hopkins, and Chris Fruits.

People's involvement was the key to making the show great.

Leading Ladies
 Randi Stromski and Colleen Thornburgh played the leading roles for women in the musical. For Randi, her character Mammy was her first major role. "My first lead role was a good experience and I liked working with everybody," she comments.

And the award for best costume goes to . . .
 Todd McColgin in his character Lonesome Polecat. On the stage, Todd sported a stylish Indian brave outfit, along with a great-looking black wig.
