

The Main Players

The musical involved many characters. Some of the more substantial roles in the show included these. . .

"I has spoken!"
was Mammy Yokum's firm and repeated resolution to any defiance. Played by Randi Stromski, Mammy always made sure that "when I prefurs, you concurs!"

Pappy Yokum
Played by Toby Baldwin, Pappy was the wily old husband of Mammy and father of Abner. Toby really enjoyed working on the musical. "Me likey musical," he says.

Marryin' Sam
The name says it all—played by Matt White, Marryin' Sam was always looking to conduct a wedding.

Earthquake McGoon
Garrett Hedeon's character was Earthquake, whose secret desire was to have Daisy as his wife. Unfortunately for him, Daisy only has eyes for Abner.

Daisy
Daisy was the main character, along with Abner, played by Colleen Thornburgh.

Abner
Abner was the main character, along with Daisy, played by Joe Strong.

Senator Jack S. Phogbound and Miss Appassionata
Treg Hopkins and Tricia Burger played more high-society characters as part of General Bullmoose's evil plot.

General Bullmoose and Evil-Eye Fleagle
Played by Josh Blaydes, General Bullmoose was the corrupted government official who tries to steal rights to Abner's Yokumberry tonic using Evil-Eye Fleagle's famous truth-telling and suicidal "whammy."

The Dogpatch Wives
Played by Brooke Perkins, Courtney Frosch, Nikki Wampler, and Jennifer Harlan, the wives gladly give up their husbands to experiments of the beautifying Yokumberry tonic.

The Scientists
Played by Nichole Stromski, Brandi Thatcher, Amanda Billings, and Amanda Fordice, the governmental scientists perform experiments to confirm the effects of the Yokumberry tonic.
