

French

Bon Appetit!

Kim Fruits, Rebekka Bodine, and Amanda Neibert enjoy some delicious cupcakes in the French room. For Valentine's Day, the French classes enjoyed some treats along with other fun activities.

Edible Playdough?

In other words, "marzipan" is molded here by Allison Cotner to make a pink flower. The students learn first hand how marzipan is used in many French pastries for decoration.

Jenga!

Matt Wrightsman, Jimmy Powers, Matt Rose, and Scott O'Connor play this game to practice the word "tober," which means "to fall." Is there perhaps a word for "to fall asleep"?

Show and Tell

Liz Phipps, Kenneth Stone, and Shawn Noyes listen to Jessica Horton in class. To practice, students must learn to speak only in French.

Bingo!

Madame Cinn Lee. . . . is North Putnam's French teacher. It is her first full year here, but she enjoys it very much. "I have so much fun teaching that I probably shouldn't get paid for it!" she comments.
